- 11.1 Contracts for difference, options, futures, swaps, forward rate agreements and many other derivatives (including most put options) are leveraged products and involve a high level of risk. It is possible for the Investor to lose all his invested capital. Therefore, these products may not be appropriate or suitable for everyone and the Investor should ensure that he understands the risks involved. If the Investor considers that he is not properly able to understand the investment risks involved he should seek independent advice.
- 11.2 When the Investor trades CFDs with the Company, the Investor will be entering into an off-exchange (OTC) derivative transaction, by placing his orders through the Company's trading platform. OTC transactions may involve greater risk than investing in on-exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close out an open position.
- 11.3 The Company cannot guarantee that it will be able to execute orders for Investors following a particular Investment Strategy at the same price as the relevant Strategy Provider.
- 11.4 The Investor needs to open and close a position with the Company that is not transferable to any other person. In this case, the Investor may be exposed to the risk of the Company default.
- 11.5 Information on past performance of a Financial Instrument does not guarantee the present and/or future performance. The use of historic data does not constitute a binding or safe forecast as to the corresponding future return of the Financial Instruments to which such data refers.
- 11.6 When a Financial Instrument is negotiated in a currency other than the currency of the Investor's country of residence, any changes in an exchange rate may have a negative effect on the Financial Instruments' value, price and performance.
- 11.7 A Financial Instrument in foreign markets may entail risks different than the usual risks in the markets at the Investor's country of residence. The prospect of profit or loss from transactions in foreign markets is also influenced by the exchange rate fluctuations.
- 11.8 Some Financial Instruments may not become immediately liquid due to various reasons such as reduced demand and the Company may not be in a position to sell them or easily obtain information on the value of such Financial Instruments or the extent of any related or inherent risk concerning such Financial Instruments.

- 11.9 The Investor unreservedly acknowledges and accepts that, regardless of any information, which may be offered by the Company, the value of any investment in Financial Instruments may increase or decrease and there is a substantial risk that the investment may become of no value. In the case of Financial Instruments which are contracts for differences or other contractually based derivatives the entire amount of margin deposit may be lost.
- 11.10 The Company has not solicited, or in any other way recommended to the Investor participation in trading with the Company pursuant to any particular trading system including TradeCopier, and the Investor has made inquiries and conducted research sufficient to make an informed investment decision.
- 11.11 The Investor unreservedly acknowledges and accepts that he runs a great risk of incurring losses as a result of purchasing and/or selling any Financial Instrument and the Investor accepts and declares that he is willing to undertake this risk.
- 11.12 The Investor acknowledges and accepts that the Company does not provide any investment advice. The Company is not acting as an advisor to, or serving as a fiduciary of, the Investor, and the Company specifically disclaims any such duties.
- 11.13 The Investor confirms that the funds deposited to the account held with the Company are derived from legitimate sources. The Investor further acknowledges and confirms that he/she has the financial resources and relevant knowledge to make an informed decision regarding the funding and trading of the account, and that the Investor is trading on his/her own behalf and on his/her own accord.
- 11.14 The Company's services include products that are traded on margin and carry a risk of losing all of the Investor's initial deposit. Before deciding on trading on margin products the Investor should consider his/her investment objectives, risk tolerance and his/her level of experience on these products. Margin products may not be suitable for everyone and the Investor should ensure that he/she understands the risks involved. The Investor should be aware of all the risks associated in regards to products that are traded on margin and seek independent financial advice, if necessary.
